FINDING THE FULL TEXT OF AN ARTICLE USING ‘SEARCH LIBRARY’

If you know the name of the article you want, you can search for it using Search Library. Type the name of the article into the search box and click on the arrow.

A list of results will then show, click on the link of the article you want.

You may be asked to log in. Use your University email address and University password.
When you log in, the abstract of the article will show. To access the full article, click on Full Text from EBSCO, on the left hand side of the page.

FINDING THE FULL TEXT OF AN ARTICLE IN A JOURNAL USING ‘SEARCH LIBRARY’

Sometimes when you are searching for articles in databases you find articles without links to the full text. Often we do have access to the full text and you need to search for the article in the journal it is in. First, take note of the journal it is in, the volume number, issue number and page numbers.

Then type the name of the journal into Search Library and click the search button.
This will then show the results. Here we can see that we have access to the ‘Journal of entrepreneurship in emerging economies’ from 2014 to the present day.

Click on the link Available online. You may have to log in using your University email and password. You will then be directed to the Journal.

Look through the Journal for your article.
If you cannot find the full text anywhere you can apply for the article to be emailed to you via Interlibrary Loan. This is a University service which is free for students.

To bring up the form for applying for an Interlibrary loan go to the library homepage and click on the box REQUEST A RESOURCE.

Then click on Interlibrary Loan.
Then click on the link Journal article. This will take you to a form which you need to fill in with as much information as possible about the article.

You will then be emailed the article, with instructions on how to access it.

Requests on average take three days but some may take longer.
